The State
Convention

The absolutely unbossed character of the Democratic state convention, which adjourned Tuesday afternoon, was evidenced in every detail of its procedure. It was said that the state organization would dominate the convention because it had succeeded in getting a vote of confidence in its management of the campaign, and had with ease captured the state central committee.

Men who argued that way, however, were keeping in mind the Republican organization. With control of the districts the Republican machine would not have stopped till every nomination on the ticket was captured. Not so with the Democratic campaign organization. It had a pride in being indorsed for the successful campaign it conducted last year. It had a right to ask for a vote of confidence in its work for future campaigns. It got that indorsement most heartily. After that, the organization withdrew and the delegates went ahead and fashioned the platform and nominated the ticket.

It was said that Chairman Garber was for Bunnell for dairy and food commissioner and for Oliver for school commissioner. If that is true, he was beaten on both propositions, yet he was overwhelmingly elected executive chairman by the state central committee.

It was said that W. L. Finley was going to dominate the platform in every detail. He did make a strong fight for county option on the liquor question, but was beaten in the convention. Yet he was triumphantly re-elected secretary of the executive committee, a compliment which he cannot fail to appreciate.

It was said that Tom Johnson would insist that the Howe franchise tax measure be edited into the platform bearing its title as well as its substance. There is nothing in the platform about the "Howe bill." So Johnson must have been licked there.

It was said Johnson would give Chairman Garber a black eye every chance he got and would not be for anyone who was for Garber for chairman. Yet Mr. Johnson threw the Cuyahoga county votes to Samuel Hoskins for secretary of state and defeated Allen W. Thurman for that honor. Mr. Hoskins openly favored Garber for chairman. Somebody who was talking bossism got his wires crossed on this proposition.

It is a fact that the convention did much as it liked in the matter of candidates and platform. Nobody bossed the convention and nobody tried to do so. It was a convention composed of representatives of the rank and file of the Democratic party. The result of its labors is seen in the excellent ticket nominated and the forcible and wholesome platform that was adopted.

Throughout the whole proceeding the desire of the delegates was to occupy the high moral plane that the party occupied during the last campaign. In this the delegates did not fail.

The platform is a model document, appealing to the best citizenship of the state. It reiterates the Pattison platform of last year and announces that the Democrats of Ohio stand by the principles of their dead leader.

There was a difference of opinion as to the advisability of placing in the platform a specific temperance measure. A majority of the delegates believed it to be unwise to do so. In a general way all legislation tending to protect the homes and the people of the state was indorsed, but the working out of the details was left to the legislature, just as it was left to the legislature last year.

There was no temperance plank of any character in the platform on which Governor Pattison won his splendid victory. And there is no temperance plank in the platform on which Samuel A. Hoskins will win anther victory this year.

The platforms are alike in their high moral tone. They are also alike in the omission of any specific method of dealing with the encroachments of the liquor element.

Specific indorsement of any particular method in dealing with this question has its pitfalls. Last year the platform was silent on the Brannock law, yet the campaign was waged in part on that law and on the stump and in the press it was declared that the old Brannock law should be substituted for the one passed after it had been edited by Governor Herriek.

With power to pass the old Brannock law, it was not passed, but in its stead was passed a measure even more drastic in character, based on an entirely different theory of approach. It is a petition law instead of a direct vote.

Had there been specific indorsement of the original Brannock law, the action of the legislature, at the request of the administration and with the active assistance of the Anti-saloon league, would have been a violation of the promise of the Democratic party in its platform. The Jones law is by no means the original Brannock law. In many instances it is diametrically the opposite to the Brannock law. Its operation is different in many details. Yet it is eminently satisfactory to the temperance people. It is, in fact, a more effective law than the original Brannock law, with its multiplicity of inconsistencies could possibly have been.

The temperance people trusted the Democratic party in 1905 and the result was more temperance legislation than had ever been enacted before in any legislature.

The Democratic party again this year, leaving the legislature to work out the details, declares specifically its adherence to the policies advocated by John M. Pattison. That it will be trusted with the performance of that duty cannot be doubted by those who read the signs of the times aright.

The convention saw fit to eliminate the county option plank insisted upon by a large number of the delegates. The plank was insisted upon because it was in the inaugural address of the late governor. But the platform did declare: "We pledge ourselves to continue the battle he began until a lasting victory be won."

Something better than county option may disclose itself before the time comes for the passage of such a measure, just as something better than the original Brannock bill disclosed itself before the time came to strengthen the old residence district option measure. Time and the legislature will work out the solution of the temperance problems that remain.

The platform is strong in its denunciation of bossism, and is also strong in its reference to graft, especially as regards the disclosures of the Drake committee in Cincinnati. The hardihood the committee displayed in deprecating the delay of the supreme court in withholding its decision as to the legality of the commission but reflects the feelings of the people in this behalf. Had the commission discovered nothing wrong in Hamilton county, it is not at all likely that any attempt to interfere with the work of the committee would have been made. It was only after officials had been made to pour more than a quarter of a million of money back into the treasury that the courts were resorted to. The plank in the platform referring to this matter is notice to the people of the Democratic party insists that the thieves return their loot to the treasury and that decisions held up for political purposes are not popular. No charge is made in the platform that the decisions in this case are held up for that purpose, but the platform deprecates delay from any cause and is construed by many as a demand that the decision be rendered before election day.

The candidates nominated by the convention make up one of the best tickets ever presented to the people of the state.

Samuel H. Hoskins is a man of the Pattison school of right thinking and right living. He is prominent in his community and is at present prosecuting attorney of Auglaize county. While just and fair in his dealings with every man and in no sense a persecutor, he is a terror to evil doers in his capacity as prosecutor.

Mr. Hoskins was born on a farm in Union county in March, 1865. In 1900 he led Miss Clara Hamilton, of Richmond, to the altar. He taught school for seven years and in 1887 was graduated from Ohio Northern University at Ada. He is at present a member of the board of trustees of that institution. He is prominent in church circles, is a member of the Methodist church at Wapakoneta and was a member of the general conference of the church at Chicago in 1900. Governor Pattison appointed Mr. Hoskins a member of the Lima hospital commission and showed his confidence in him by permitting him to select the fifth member. Mr. Hoskins is chairman of the commission. He is a strong advocate of what he believes to be right and that he can make a good speech was evidenced at the convention, Wednesday, when he delivered a speech of acceptance. It was apparent to all of the delegates that he has convictions and is not afraid to express them.

Charles A. Hauptert, who was named for state school commissioner, is a well known educator. He is at present superintendent of the schools at Wooster, O., and has lectured before many county institutes. In educational circles this nomination is considered the strongest that could have been made.

Rodney J. Diegle, of Erie county, won, and can tell a bad egg when he sees it and can detect a victory on his popularity and his fitness for the office of dairy and food commissioner. As Judge Beis of Sandusky stated in placing Mr. Diegle's name before the convention: "He knows coloring in butter on sight." Mr. Diegle has been advertising agent for Cedar Point for some time. He was formerly a newspaper man, connected with Columbus newspapers and has also been identified with the circulation department of the Ohio Magazine. He is a prominent Elk and has a host of friends throughout the state.

George E. Neiswonger, for board of public works, is a Darke county citizen, respected by all who know him. He was county commissioner at one time. He is a farmer and his family has long been prominent in Darke county.

THE POLITICAL fight in Ohio, this year, will be along much the same lines as last year. The Republican bosses are again asserting their dictatorial power. The bosses, headed by Boss Dick, are again in control of the Republican organization, and no Republican dare apply for a nomination or an office unless he has the O. K. mark of the bosses on him. The Democratic party and the independent Republicans will wage another fight against the thralldom of the despots who rule the Republican party and the state with an iron hand. The verdict last year must be repeated with emphasis before the bosses will loosen their grip on the State of Ohio.

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong, and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!

COLUMBUS, O.

TO NOMINATE WRIGHT.

He Will Be the Candidate Against Douglas.

(The Ohio Sun.)

O. W. Wright of Logan arrived in the city yesterday and is registered at the Neil house.

Judge Wright has just returned from Detroit, where he left his wife for a brief outing up the lakes. Last evening a number of prominent Democrats of the Eleventh district were in consultation with the Judge. The convention to nominate a Democratic candidate for congress in Eleventh district will be held in Chillicothe next Thursday, and Judge Wright will be nominated by acclamation. It is generally conceded among the Democrats of the district that Judge Wright is the strongest man to put up against Albert Douglas, the Republican candidate.

Judge Wright served two terms on the common pleas bench in Hocking county, being elected both times by phenomenal majorities. At his last election he carried the district by over 1500 majority. He is an able attorney and a great mixer.

Summarily.

Four Democratic members of the state house labor force were dropped Thursday by order of Adjutant General Critchfield and four Republicans put in their places. Only the two elevator attendants in the judiciary building and the visitors attendant, Berkshire, now remain of the Pattison administration appointees, and General Critchfield has only been in office a week.—New Lexington Herald.

Shall Inherit the Earth.

The position of the standpat Republicans illustrates the old story of the three men who met to start a new church, with but two planks in its platform—"1st. The meek shall inherit the earth; 2nd. We are the meek."—New Lexington Herald.

So Be It

(Town Topics.)

It would look odd Democratic days and times with both Judge O. W. H. Wright and Col. W. A. Taylor members of the next Ohio congressional delegation.

Opening of New Olympic Theatre, Cincinnati.

The New Olympic, the finest and most handsomely equipped Vaudeville Theatre in America, and the only absolutely safe fireproof play house in Ohio, will open with Matinee on Sunday, September 2. Manager, W. S. Cleveland, has secured for the opening week an unparalleled list of all-star, all-featured numbers for the inaugural bill. Among others, Joe Welch, Hebrew Impersonator, who stars at the head of his own company and who will forsake the legitimate for one week on account of Cincinnati's Big Theatrical Event; Della Fox, the well known Comic Opera and Musical Star, will also be on for the opening week; Chevalier de Loris & Company, whose spectacular exhibition of marksmanship, check full of sensational feats, makes theirs the most eagerly sought-for novelty in all the world; Tom Nary and his famous Company in "Pat and the Genii," just back from Australian successes; Daisy Harcourt, English Coster Singer who comes from the Palace, London after a six months' European engagement. Another feature of unusual merit is the Colby Family, the best musical act to be had at any price; Greene and Werner "The Jungle Babes" also come for the opening week. All these, together with the Duffin-Redey Troupe, known the world over as "Monarchs of the Air" go to make up a show that Cincinnatians will talk about for months to come. The sale of seats for September is on and from present indications there will not be much more than breathing room in "The Olympic" during Fall Festival time. Popular prices, 15, 25, 35, 50 and 75 cents will prevail.

NOTICE.

All persons indebted to the late firm of Geo. Schafer Druggist, will take notice that such indebtedness must be paid on or before Wednesday, Sept. 5. After that date suit will be entered for the collection of all unpaid accounts by process of law.
